

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Comotiv Systems™ CEO Interviewed by Portland Business Journal

(Portland, OR — May 25, 2006) Comotiv Systems Founder and CEO, Ken Majors, was interviewed by the Portland Business Journal earlier this year. The interview was conducted by Melody Finnemore of the Journal. It recounts the early days of Comotiv Systems, when it was known as Virtualdesign.net, and of Major's successful efforts to fund the company and promote the product he has led his team to develop, Comotiv Collaboration™, a real-time and on-line workforce collaboration application.

The interview reveals that since the company started in 2000, both it and Comotiv Collaboration have matured. The product itself has grown from its early days to an application that features both data and audio/video conferencing as an online alternative to face-to-face meetings, allowing customers to save valuable dollars in travel expenses and productivity lost while traveling.

You can find this insightful and well-written interview at the Portland Business Journal's website, <http://portland.bizjournals.com/portland/stories/2006/02/13/focus2.html>

Comotiv Systems is an application service provider (ASP) that was founded in 1999 and is headquartered in Portland, Ore. Its flagship product, Comotiv Collaboration, is an easy-to-use Web-based communications and collaboration application. It provides a central repository for document storage, along with modules for data conferencing, and audio/video conferencing. For more information, please visit our Web site at www.comotivsystems.com.

Comotiv Systems
111 SW Columbia St
Portland, OR 97201
503.224.7496

###